Update - 28 March 2017

FFA Engagement

AAFC recently wrote to FFA CEO, David Gallop, in connection with its aim to secure representation at the FFA Congress. Its letter followed correspondence with FFA both before and after the meeting in Melbourne on 20 March 2017 of AAFC's member clubs.

Separately, FFA has sought to convene discussions with AAFC, involving Emma Highwood, Head of Community, Football Development & Women's Football and Mark Falvo, Head of Corporate Strategy, International and Government Relations, seeking to better understand the outcomes of AAFC's first meeting of clubs. AAFC has welcomed FFA's interest in the aims and objectives of NPL clubs and looks forward to engaging in productive discussions with Emma and Mark as soon as possible.

AAFC shall further update its members and the football public upon receiving a reply from David Gallop and following its discussions with Emma Highwood and Mark Falvo.
